

Universitat Rovira i Virgili, Spain

Universitat Rovira i Virgili (URV) was created in 1991 as a public institution which places knowledge at the service of society and contributes to the social and economic development of its environment, by providing 52 programmes of study in a wide variety of knowledge areas for over 12,000 students. URV is one of the leading universities in the European area for the quality of its teaching and excellence of its research, development and innovation.

In the spirit of the Bologna Declaration, the URV has begun to implement new degrees that provide top quality education which focuses on the acquisition of knowledge and competences that guarantee success in the professional world, by designing modern courses that use new teaching and learning methodologies in which the student is the centre of academic activity.

URV offers 60 master's and doctoral programmes, in accordance with the academic requirements and criteria of the new European Higher Education Area, which meet the new requirements in different areas of knowledge as defined by experts and specialists in the business world and society.
